

Why is this policy important?

This policy addresses the requirements of the Financial Markets Conduct Act 2013 (FMC Act). Its purpose is to ensure that conflicts of interest are identified and managed appropriately to prevent any negative effect on clients, loss of regulatory licenses and status, offences under law, or reputational damage.

In giving advice, a broker must give priority to the client's interests by taking all reasonable steps to ensure that the advice is not materially influenced by, firstly, the broker's own interests, and secondly, the interests of any other person connected with the giving of the advice.

Where there's a conflict of interest, the broker must give priority to the client's interests.

A conflict is a situation where:

- Some or all of the company's or an employee's interests are incompatible with, or differ from, some or all of a client's interests;
- The concerns or aims of two different parties are incompatible;
- Some or all of an employee's interests are in conflict with the company's interest; or
- An employee is in a position to derive personal benefit from actions or decisions made in their official capacity.
- The giving or receiving of gifts may also create a conflict.

Brokers and employees have an obligation to ensure that their interests and the interests of the FAP are not placed ahead of the client's interests, especially where to do so would disadvantage a client or would negatively impact on the service a client receives. This policy seeks to address these issues.

Our policy

We do this:

- Inform clients about any actual or potential conflicts, even if these conflicts have not influenced the opinions or recommendations, we may have given them.
- If we have any concern that an action might create a conflict, we do not take that action.
- Exclude ourselves from FAP business decisions which impact on our family members or associated entities.
- Obtain our FAP's prior written consent before engaging in any outside employment or role that has the potential to create an actual, potential or perceived conflict of interest.
- Record conflicts which have been identified on the Conflicts Register along with mitigating actions where required. The register is updated as required and reviewed annually.

We don't do this:

- Accept any gifts.
- Solicit or request gifts, hospitality or favours from clients or any other parties that may result in a perceived or actual conflict.
- Put ourselves in situations where we may derive personal benefit from actions or decisions made in our official capacity.

Implementation

All brokers and employees receive induction and annual retraining on the contents of this policy.

Actual or perceived conflicts are escalated to senior management [and the Corporate Compliance Manager] for review.

Ensuring compliance

Fostering a culture of compliance, which encourages open reporting of conflicts.

The extensive use of disclosures, which allow clients to make informed decisions about a conflict and its potential impact on the product or service being provided to them.
